All ads should focus on allowing the scene to draw in the attention of the audience, before tweening in the localized and adapted key message and product series title copy. Finally, the scene should animate to a final state where only the Yosuki logo, and CTA are visible, in order to invite interaction from the audience and procure a click.

Tone & Messaging Pillars

All messaging should reinforce Yosuki's emphasis on Japanese craftsmanship, professional-grade performance, the brand's emotional connection to music, and premium build quality.

All taglines should be under 6 words, be bold and direct, avoid clichés, and be adaptable across all target languages. Localized copy should feel native/fluent, not machine translated or translated too literally from the original English copy. Adapt cultural tone appropriately for maximum regional resonance.

CTA (call-to-action) copy should be 4 words or less, action-oriented. Focus on being clear and concise.

Copy Constraints

Consider the templated approach the desired pipeline will need to implement. To maintain good design practices, please consider the ideal copy length for each template element, and enforce/recommend a character limit to adhere to for maximum template compatibility. Avoid line breaks unless absolutely necessary; it can look unpolished. Localized German copy may require shorter phrasing due to compound words.

Required Output Formats

For each requested product variant, we may need to create some or all of these resolutions/aspect ratios:

- 970x250 pixel Billboard Banner
- 1080p 16:9 YouTube Ad
- 1:1 Instagram Reel

We have not confirmed this with the social media strategist yet, please keep an eye out for specific aspect ratios per product variant as the project ramps up. Your project manager should provide these details as soon as we have confirmation.

Asset Usage

We have provided GLB renders, product photography from our PDP pages, and our logo for use in all final assets. AI-generated backgrounds or videos may be used, but must align with product-specific art direction as outlined by the Creative Director above.
